The Sun

The sun does not look like the stars.

But it is a star all the same.

Just like other stars, the sun gives off heat and light.

Earth, our planet, cannot do that.

The sun looks so much bigger and brighter than other stars
because it is so much closer to Earth.

The Moon

The moon goes around the earth, being lit up by the sun.

Sometimes we can see the whole moon and other times only small parts of it.

This is because the moon produces no light.

We can see the parts that are reflecting the light from the sun.

The moon is large but looks small because it is far away.

Birds

Birds have feathers.

Other creatures do not have feathers.

Birds use their feathers to fly and to keep themselves warm.

Birds can fly because they have wings and very light skeletons.

They are light because many of their bones are hollow.

Most birds have short and small bodies that help them fly, too.

But some birds cannot fly.

Insects

Insects have six legs.

They have three body parts: a head, a thorax, and an abdomen.

Some insects are very small and others are surprisingly large.

Insects can be pests, but they are also very important to us.

In fact, we could not live without them.

For instance, dung beetles clean up dung for us.

The Hare and the Tortoise

There once was a hare that was always boasting that he ran fast.

One day, he said to the other animals, "No one can run faster than me. Does anybody want to race with me?" The tortoise said, "I will race you."

"You!" laughed the hare, "Are you serious?" "Of course, I'm serious," said the tortoise. "Shall we race?" So the race began. The hare darted off, and very soon he was far ahead of the tortoise. The tortoise moved along at a steady, slow pace. The hare thought, "I think I'll take a little nap."

So he fell asleep. He was still asleep when the tortoise passed by. When the hare woke up, he looked ahead. The tortoise was crossing the finish line to win the race.

The Grasshopper and the Ants

In a field on a fine summer's day, a grasshopper was hopping about, enjoying himself. Nearby, a group of ants was hard at work.

They had built their house underground and were filling it with food for the long cold winter ahead. All summer long, while the ants worked, the grasshopper danced and sang. Yes, the grasshopper was a happy fellow, but he never thought about the future. One day, the grasshopper felt a chill in the air. Then, the days kept getting cooler, and soon the fields where he liked to sing and dance turned bare and hard. Now, the cold days of winter were upon him, and the grasshopper was freezing and hungry. He went to the ants' house and asked for food. But the ants said "No."
